	I was sitting on the bank of a small canal looking at a couple of cranes fishing in the muddy water, when I felt my elbow nudged. Looking around, I found at my side a little goat, as soft as velvet, with pretty grey eyes. Neither her owner, nor her mother was around. As she continued to nudge me, I looked in my pocket for some titbit, and finding a biscuit, held it out to her. She ate it with pleasure and then sat down beside me and began nibbling at the grass. A little later, I got up to leave. The goat rose too. 'Go home', I said, but she didn't show any reaction other than looking at me. Anyway her home it seemed was on the other side of the canal. It was clear that her thin legs were too weak to cross the canal. So, I took her in my arms and carried her across the canal. When I sat her down, hoping she would now find her way home, she remained beside me, rubbing her warm body against my legs.
