9. Read the following text and answer the questions given below

Desert Animals

Deserts are lands with little water. As many deserts are very hot animals shelter during the day and come out at night. Lizard, fennec fox, camel and scorpion are some of them.

Lizards are reptiles. They like to lie in the sun and absorb energy. Then move about with that energy. They can fall their tails behind to escape from attackers.

Fennec foxes have a small body and long ears. The long ears help to drive out the heat from the body. Their feet have thick fur to protect them from the hot sand.

Camels can go without water for months. When they find water they drink a lot of water right away. Their humps store fat that can be used as food later.

Scorpions are related to spiders. They have eight legs. At the end of the tail there is a sting to kill their prey or drive away their attacks.

- i. What are deserts?.....
- ii. Why do animals in the deserts shelter during the day?
- iii. What do lizards like to do?.....
- iv. Why does fennec fox have long ears?.....
- v. How long can camels go without water?.....
